

SEIZE THE DAY.

Spend the Night.

At the Anndore House, we believe the foundation of a great hotel is a place where you'd want to live and be yourself. Originally built as a residence hotel in 1955, The Anndore (which, according to rumours, was named after the owner's two daughters - Ann and Dorothy) was home to many of Toronto's most eccentric personalities and famous faces. Our House was then reborn in 2017 showcasing the unique quirky past and modern style that we still embrace today. In 2021, we proudly joined JdV by Hyatt - a collection of original hotels with a deep respect for the neighbourhoods that make up each destination.

We believe that life is either a daring experience or nothing at all and we're happy to offer an experience that isn't like your typical hotel. The Anndore House has a creative soul and we lovingly share our passion for art and culture to kindred spirits. You'll discover some of Toronto's most talented artistry in our building's finishes. They're all one of a kind. Just like us. From dining options to amenities, we hope that Our House feels like a home away from home. So please, get cozy and enjoy your stay!
